As public servants, our daily work helps to fuel the economy, maintain public safety, and provide care. Our efforts provide hope and assistance – to the sick and the vulnerable, the very young and the very old, those who are unemployed and those who need a second chance. During periods of economic downturn, what we do each day is elevated from important to essential.

When it comes to the services we provide, we must challenge ourselves – and each other – to meet the needs and expectations of the diverse population we serve. It is the mission of the Division of Personnel to provide you with human resource and talent management services that can help you meet these expectations.

Through the Organization and Human Resource Development (OHRD) section, the Division offers training and development programs for executives, managers, and employees. Our 2010 Program Schedule contains new topics and updated programs that reflect current workplace needs. These programs will be offered in ways that make enrollment and scheduling easier and more convenient than in the past.

I encourage you to take advantage of the training and development opportunities presented. We believe that our programs can help you develop the confidence and competence necessary to meet the challenges that lie ahead.

On behalf of the Division of Personnel, I welcome you to a new year of purposeful work. I am hopeful and expectant that it will be your best year yet.

Sara P. Walker

"When it comes to the services we provide, the status quo won't suffice."

Vision 2012: Governor Joe Manchin III The Statewide Strategic Plan for West Virginia

Healthy, educated West Virginians who live in safe, modern communities that are part of a growing, diverse economy and served by a responsible state government.

Department of Administration's Mission

Operate a cost-efficient, customer-oriented service department whose actions are transparent to taxpayers resulting in innovative solutions and quality results for a government that effectively serves West Virginians.

Division of Personnel's Mission

The Division of Personnel provides personnel management services to state agencies and client organizations in support of their employing, managing, developing, and retaining staff of the highest ability and integrity.

Helping You Succeed

OHRD's Mission

The Organization and Human Resource Development office exists to facilitate learning, guide visionary change efforts, and improve performance.

As Consultants, OHRD serves West Virginia State Government agencies, administrators, and employees by providing individual, career, and organizational development services and innovating learning strategies.

Our Values

We value high quality service that offers a variety of cost effective solutions and satisfies our customers' performance improvement and learning needs.

We take care of our customers.

We value teamwork characterized by learning and teaching, compassion, respect, and open communication.

We take care of each other.

We value a personal standard of excellence built on accountability, leadership, commitment and service. We show leadership.

We value an environment that fosters creativity, energy, and a sense of play.

We have fun.

Helping You Succeed

Organizational Assessment

This intervention uses survey data, interviewing, focus groups, and observation techniques to diagnose organizational systems.

Organizational assessment identifies strengths and weaknesses in systems and makes specific recommendations for improvement; develops action plans for identifying strategies, objectives, tactics, needed resources, logistics, and target dates; establishes baseline data necessary to plan and chart progress; conducts feedback sessions for managers and other employees; and facilitates implementation of action plans for agencies.

Program Schedule

In addition to administering the Supervisor/Manager Training Program Policy DOP-P18), OHRD provides employee development programs each calendar year. An extensive competency development curriculum is offered through the annually-published Program Schedule. Training classes offered in the Program Schedule help develop the key competencies that enable individuals to improve their performance and stimulate their personal and professional growth.

Strategic Planning for Results

The Strategic Planning process guides an agency or division of an agency through several planning phases: assessment of readiness to plan, mission/vision/values formulation, identification of driving forces, strengths and weaknesses, and developing a specific customer service plan. This analysis is used as the basis for developing organizational goals, objectives, and action plans. Emphasis is placed on relating mission and plan to individual performance objectives. The overall goal is to involve key managers in planning for an organization's successful future.

Team Building

This service assists with learning about and developing strategies for examining and improving work group effectiveness; helps groups analyze their functioning, performance, understanding of group dynamics, goal setting, problem solving, and conflict management processes.

WV Department

Agency Development Plan

This service identifies individual and organizational training needs by using a systematic approach generated in collaboration with the agency and customized to meet the agency's unique needs The resulting recommendation provides a written plan of agency developmental needs.

Change Implementation

This service supports managers and supervisors in their efforts to effectively manage planned change and to minimize disruption when change occurs unexpectedly. This service is predicated on (1) accepting change as a process, (2) understanding the natural resistance to change, and (3) planning strategies for successful change.

Solutions

Customized Development Programs

Customized programs are developed to meet specific agency training needs by first conducting a training needs assessment and analysis. Following completion of this analysis, the training program is designed, delivered, and evaluated to meet the agency's requirements.

Facilitation

Groups solve problems and value effective decisions when they balance a task orientation with the concern for the needs of group members. A facilitator can assist a group in accomplishing these goals. This key person must balance the critical tensions associated with the structure, pace, interaction, focus, and concerns of the group. OHRD's facilitation service introduces concepts and methods for facilitating the process of group interaction and task accomplishment.

For more details about these and other performance solutions offered by OHRD, contact an OHRD Consultant:

OHRD's Special Request for Services (SRS) System

What is an SRS?

By incorporating researched-based solutions with a unique understanding and knowledge of WV state government laws, policies, rules, processes and practices, OHRD offers specific training and consulting services that facilitate learning, guide performance. In addition to the training events listed in the annual Program Schedule, we offer training, development and consulting services to state agencies upon request.

Solutions Choosing the Right Solutions

These requests are filled based on specific criteria, including: connection to OHRD mission, needs assessment data, availability of consultants, and workload priorities.

How is an SRS Processed?

A requestor completes a Special Request for Services Form with the preliminary needs assessment information and submits it to the OHRD office. (Note: the requester's signature section of the request must be completed.)

The request is assessed by the SRS Review Committee and an approved/denied determination is made based on established criteria, including connection to OHRD mission, needs assessment data, availability of consultants, and workload priorities. OHRD may request additional data from the agency.

If the request is approved, OHRD will contact the requestor and conduct a more in-depth needs assessment. An SRS Agreement is drafted and signed between Division of Personnel/OHRD, and the requesting agency. Logistical arrangements are secured so that the service can be provided in an efficient and effective manner. (Note: Agencies will agree in advance to cover expenses including, but not limited to, materials, supplies, mileage or vehicle rental, lodging, and per diem according to state

If the request is denied, a letter of explanation will be mailed to the requestor/requesting agency and alternatives will be discussed.

WV Department

What are some typical assessment questions?

When a customer submits a Special Request for Services (SRS) Form to OHRD, the designated OHRD Consultant conducts a needs assessment and/or performance analysis.

This process allows us to recommend a solution that best meets the customer's needs.

Here are some of the typical assessment questions we ask:

- What problem(s) are you trying to address? What improvements are you seeking to make?
- Solutions
- What type of assistance are you seeking from OHRD?
- What business goals/objectives are you trying to attain?
- What do you want people to do differently? What new knowledge do you want people to gain?
- How will you know that improvement has occurred?
- On a scale of 1—10, how critical is improvement in the identified area?
- What is the risk associated with a failure to improve?
- What investment will your agency make to facilitate improvement?

Prior to submitting an SRS, consider your answers to these questions. Doing so will speed the assessment/analysis process and help facilitate the partnership between your organization and OHRD.

OHRD offers programs based on the training and development needs of the WV state workforce. We provide regularly-scheduled programs throughout the calendar year and develop new programs based on assessments of specific personnel and organizational needs. Currently, we offer over fifty training programs. We provide facilitation and OD/HRD consulting services to all departments and agencies.

As a participant, you will experience our programs in a large group, as well as in smaller, more intimate settings, allowing a variety of interactions that maximize the impact of your learning.

Can I obtain continuing education credit for OHRD courses?

Course work offered by OHRD may be recognized by State universities and colleges for conversion to academic credit. It may qualify as Continuing Education Units (CEUs) or Continuing Legal Units (CLUs), and may also be submitted to State licensing boards for consideration towards meeting their mandatory continuing education requirements.

Participants are responsible for: [1] initiating the inquiries about credit conversion with the individual licensing boards, colleges or universities; and [2] completing all paperwork processing requirements.

OHRD does not submit the information directly to the boards or educational institutions. Upon written request, OHRD will complete the necessary paperwork and return it to the individual making the request.

What time is class?

Most calendar classes are scheduled to begin promptly at 9:00AM and end by 4:00PM. If a course has a different time schedule, it will be noted in this catalog's course description. Center for Quality Government programs generally meet from 9:00AM to 5:00PM, unless otherwise noted.

How much do classes cost?

Most state employees and employees of county health departments may attend these scheduled workshops without charge.

Agencies and units not regularly billed for services provided by the Division of Personnel, including local governments, will be charged a daily fee for each participating employee.

Agencies requesting special off-campus training will agree, in advance, to cover associated expenses including, but not limited to, mileage, lodging, per diem, materials and supplies, according to state (travel) regulations.

Where do I park at the Capitol?

We recommend that you park in the metered spaces. Please remember to bring change to put in the parking meters. Most meters only accept quarters and are $.25 for each half hour. For questions and/or concerns about participant parking, contact the Department of Administration at 304.558.3062.

Where do I go for classes?

Most classes delivered by OHRD are held in the West Virginia State Training Center (Building 7), unless otherwise noted. You will need to allow time to check-in with security and obtain a visitor's pass, if you do not have employee access to the Capitol Complex. Please enter through the doors on the West side of Building 7 (the fountain side). Detailed directions to training locations may be obtained from the website at: www.personnel.wv.us/ohrd.

What if I need special accommodations?

Every reasonable effort is made to ensure that classes, seminars, and workshops are fully accessible to all employees. You may contact the OHRD section in advance to discuss such accommodations. You may also indicate on your Program Enrollment Form if special accommodations are required. OHRD will assist your agency in arranging for special accommodations. Agencies are responsible for payment of special accommodations for employees requiring these services.

What if I need more information?

Please call the OHRD office at 304.558.3950 Ext. 57204 or visit our website: www.personnel.wv.gov/ohrd.

Competency Development Curriculum

Do You...

- Want to develop a greater sense of confidence on the job?
- Want to be more marketable for career advancement in state government?
- Want to contribute more to your organization's goals?
- Care about reducing and preventing loss and liability?
- Know how to provide exceptional customer service?
- Need to be more effective and efficient in your work?
- Need a plan?

OHRD offers four Development Tracks that consist of up to five levels of classes designed to build competencies in these areas:

Communication and Customer Service; Human Resource Fundamentals; Leadership and Management Development; and Professional and Personal Effectiveness.

Each track allows for the development of specific skill sets. While participants are not restricted to completing courses in only one track, we encourage you to review these tracks and determine if pursuing a series of courses would make you more effective in your current job or more marketable for a career advancement in state government.

Each track is divided into levels ranging from 100-500. All participants, regardless of experience level, are encouraged to attend classes at every level in a particular track beginning with 100-level courses and continuing through the completion of the highest level available for that Development Track. Tracks for each OHRD class are identified at the beginning of course descriptions.

Do you believe that a lack of formal education holds you back at work? Do you dream about starting or finishing a degree? Are you confused as to how to get started on your re-entry to the world of higher education?

OHRD can help.

You may have noticed that OHRD talks a lot more about learning than we do training. Training, although a key learning solution, is only one pathway to development and growth. We urge you to embrace learning wherever it occurs: online, in meetings, and even in informal settings, such as around the coffee pot and in your worksite break rooms.

We also encourage you to consider continuing your formal education at the state's universities and colleges. Our

To formalize our commitment to making higher education a priority, OHRD continues to cultivate partnerships with the state's institutions of higher learning. We believe that by working together, OHRD and Higher Ed can enhance accessibility to continuing education for the state's employees and managers.

The Organization and Human Resource Development section has long-valued the involvement of subject-matter experts in helping us deliver our training programs.

Our initiative in this area is to expand our recruitment of content experts to serve as adjunct instructors for several OHRD programs. After securing approval from the appointing authority, our OHRD Adjunct Program recruits employees from state agencies and prepares them to serve as volunteer classroom facilitators.

These training partnerships have resulted in benefits to all state agencies. Participating agencies have enjoyed additional flexibility in meeting their training needs and in meeting the requirements of Component IV of the state's training policy.

Adjunc

Strategic recruitment of adjuncts from different parts of the state and the geographical distribution of training have resulted in travel expenses being substantially reduced. This is especially important in times of budget reductions and staff shortages. In reductions and staff shortages. In addition, the skills developed by adjuncts can be used by their organizations to provide agency-specific training.

The program also offers benefits to the individuals who serve as adjunct instructors. Volunteers enjoy opportunities to improve their speaking, questioning, and facilitation skills.

The program allows adjuncts to meet and learn from employees and managers from a variety of state agencies.

For more details about the DOP Adjunct Instructor Program (AIP), contact the AIP manager Mark Isabella at 304.558.3950 x.57248 or via email at mark.d.isabella@wv.gov.

Audience: All Employees

Track: CCS 200

Elective: Continuing Education

Coordinator:

Mark Isabella, M.A., C.P.T. Guest Instructor: Roy Forman, Deputy Director WV Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Contact Hours: 4 Hours

State employees seldom receive guidance on how to serve those with hearing loss. As a result, citizens who are deaf or hard of hearing experience difficulty when seeking services from, and working in, public agencies.

Bridging the Gap is designed to help you communicate more effectively. A cooperative effort between the WV Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing and the WV Division of Personnel, Bridging the Gap will increase your awareness of the challenges and barriers faced by people with hearing loss.

Your quest instructor, Roy Forman, Deputy Director of the Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, will discuss key aspects of deaf culture and provide tips for working effectively with interpreters. The program will also help you understand and protect the rights of people with hearing loss.

If you interact with people who are deaf or hard of hearing, or expect to do so in the future, sign up for Bridging the Gap and explore new facets of communication and customer service.

Developing Leadership SURVIVAI SKIIS

To succeed in today's challenging environment, leaders must rely on more than job-related skills and knowledge. They must also learn how to use power, politics, and persuasion to achieve their goals.

This two-day, redesigned program explores areas of leadership that often go undiscussed. In it, you will learn how to:

- Persuade others to accept your proposals and act on your ideas;
- Use power in productive ways;
- Develop your political skills;
- Manage your relationship with your boss; and
- Negotiate with others for mutual gain.

This interactive and engaging program features a variety of exercises designed to bring these concepts to life. You'll negotiate with others in "Win as Much as You Can." You'll learn to sell your ideas according to time-tested techniques. And you'll analyze real-life examples to learn how to make decisions in difficult situations.

More than any other relationship skill, listening has the potential to distinguish you as a communicator. Unfortunately, inadequate emphasis has been placed on learning how to listen effectively. Consequently, we tend to focus on advocating our positions at the expense of remaining open to the ideas and input of others.

In this program, you will learn the key mindsets and skills associated with successful listening. Through the practice of dialogue, you will learn how to balance the expression of your opinions with a mindful openness to the contribution of others.

In an interesting and participative environment, you will explore:

- The ways in which poor listening may be sabotaging your career;
- How dialogue differs from other forms of conversation;
- How listening can transform relationships and improve decision making; and
- How dialogue can be used to manage conflict and negotiate differences.

Enroll in Dialogue and Listening and learn how you can enhance your relationships and improve your performance!

Today's workplaces are teeming with stress, pressure, and tension. Demanding customers, limited resources, increased workloads—all are putting a strain on employees and managers.

One of the most common casualties in such an environment is basic civility and courtesy. While these qualities are a fundamental part of high-performing work communities, they are being routinely sacrificed for the sake of expediency, narrow interests, and demanding deadlines.

In this 90-minute session, you will learn the scope and severity of the problems associated with incivility. With your fellow participants, you will explore:

- Research data on the risks and costs associated with workplace incivility;
- The disturbing consequences bred by rudeness and disrespect;
 and
- Action steps that you and your organization can take to create a more civil and respectful workplace environment.

If you believe that your workplace is in danger of becoming one characterized by a lack of compassion, politeness, and courtesy, sign up today for Incivility in the Workplace.

Managing and the Law Online

Managing and the Law Online examines the legal implications of management. An important dimension of the program is its emphasis on the special duties imposed on supervisors and managers in the public sector. Equal opportunity in hiring and training practices is discussed as well as the obligation of managers and supervisors to create work environments that are gender, age, and disability neutral. The program examines the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Family Medical Leave Act, the Civil Rights Act, and numerous other laws and policies as they relate to personnel decisions.

This interactive online course is broken down into modules. Each module contains information summaries for the laws being studied, along with mini-scenarios and exercises that allow participants to explore the important nuances of each set of laws. To successfully complete the class, participants must score at 80% or above on the final comprehensive exam.

At the end of the program, participants will be able to:

- Better interpret and apply employment law; and
- Avoid mistakes that could place them and their agencies at risk.

If you have travel constraints in your agency, Managing and the Law Online could be the answer for you. You can complete the course at your convenience.

Do you have aspirations to be a supervisor? Do you believe that you have what it takes to be included in the next generation of state government leaders?

Supervising for Success I: Developing Tomorrow's Leaders is designed to help you answer those questions. In this three-day program, you will explore the requirements for making a successful transition from employee to supervisor. Working closely with your peers, you will explore:

- The toughest challenges associated with a promotion to supervisor;
- How supervisory roles and requirements differ from those of an employee;
- How to lead former peers after being elevated to supervisor;
- How to begin leading successfully from your very first day of supervision; and
- The essential skills of effective leaders.

While attendance in this program cannot ensure your promotion to supervisor, it can help you decide whether such a career move is for you. It can also help you be better prepared if a leadership position awaits you.

In today's economic climate, we have to produce more and more with fewer resources. If we do not work efficiently, commitments and assignments pile up. We may end up not knowing how to even start a task, let alone manage a project. Many of us are struggling with this potentially unproductive cycle. Left unaddressed, it can negatively impact our families, friends, and co-workers.

If any of this sounds familiar to you, you need to attend this class. When time and tasks are managed successfully, you benefit as well as those around you. By the end of this class, you will:

- Receive tools to manage your tasks;
- Discover your energy highs and lows;
- Learn to minimize and manage distractions; and
- Develop a personalized plan to organize your work, set priorities, and get things done.

Attend Time Management, stop procrastination, and learn to break this fruitless cycle.

An important dimension of the program is its emphasis on the special duties imposed on supervisors and managers in the public sector. Equal opportunity in hiring and training practices is discussed as well as the obligation of managers and supervisors to create work environments that are gender, age, and disability neutral. The program examines the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Family Medical Leave Act, the Civil Rights Act, and numerous other laws and policies as they relate to personnel decisions.

This interactive online course is broken down into modules. Each module contains information summaries for the laws being studied, along with mini-scenarios and exercises that allow participants to explore the important nuances of each set of laws. To successfully complete the class, participants must score at 80% or above on the final comprehensive exam.

At the end of the program, participants will be able to:

- Better interpret and apply employment law; and
- Avoid mistakes that could place them and their agencies at risk.

If you have travel constraints in your agency, Managing and the Law Online could be the answer for you. You can complete the course at your convenience.

Supervising for Success II: Fundamentals of Supervision Now titled Critical Skills for

New Supervisiors

Choices made during a new supervisor's first year can set the tone for his or her entire tenure in a supervisory position, so making the best decisions from the beginning is important.

During this highly interactive, three-day program, you will:

- Identify your personal strengths and weaknesses;
- Develop awareness of different communication styles;
- Gain insight into your leadership style;
- Learn techniques that will help you build effective workplace relationships; and
- Increase your confidence, leadership skills and personal and professional satisfaction in your job.

Being a new supervisor in the public sector can be a complex transition. Make sure you have the knowledge and skills you need to make the change as successful as possible.

What is the connection between an unsafe work place and your agency's insurance premiums? What are the most common sources of employee injuries? What can you do to reduce risk and liability associated with an unsafe work place?

In order to maximize productivity and protect the well-being of employees, administrators must ensure they maintain a safe work environment.

This class will show you how to create such an environment. You will receive practical aids for preventing unsafe conditions in the workplace. You will also receive an agency safety initiative model. Finally, you will learn how to create and execute an agency emergency response procedure.

Join us to learn how to produce a safe and healthy work environment and reduce liability.

Finance for the Non-Financial Manager

Just how does the budget process work? How can I track my unit's purchases in the Finance Information Management's System? How does the audit process work?

If you've asked these questions, then Finance for the Non-Financial Manager is for you. This two-day program is designed for managers at all levels who are unfamiliar with, or want a refresher on fiscal management in state government, both at the agency level and as a whole.

Guest speakers will provide supervisors and managers an insightful overview of fiscal management in state government.

Specifically, you will learn about:

- Revenue projections;
- Budget formation;
- Purchasing procedures;
- The purchasing card program;
- The expenditure process; and
- The function of the Auditor's & Treasurer's offices.

Join us for this informative session and learn what your agency's numbers mean and how you can use this knowledge to manage more effectively.
